

Personal Growth Concepts™

www.personalgrowthconcepts.com

Waiting Room

ONE DOES NOT NEED TO KNOW MUCH ABOUT A PROBLEM...

"One does not need to know much about a problem to solve it."

From: 1001 Solution Focused Questions by Fredrike Bannink

Behavioral psychology teaches us that a problem is not always present in the same degree.

It is important to look closely at what is different at those moments when the problem is absent, less of a problem or not a problem.

These moments when you are doing something differently, thinking differently are keys to solving the problem.

© Copyright 2004 Personal Growth Concepts